

Chen Wei is the founder of a lean 30-person tech startup, PivotStack Pte Ltd. His law firm drafted a suite of employment contracts 18 months ago. Because the startup moves fast and Chen wants to manage headcount tightly, the law firm included two clauses on his instruction:

- A "maximum engagement age" clause — specifying that employment automatically terminates upon the employee reaching age 62, without further notice.
- A "no-grievance" clause — stating that employees waive the right to raise internal disputes regarding termination decisions

These contracts are sitting in the law firm's file, ready to be sent out to three new hires next week.

FEATURE 1 — READING THE BILL

The 200-page bill, reduced to what changed

Purpose and main provisions are drawn only from the Explanatory Statement — definitions and consequential amendments excluded.

CLAUSE 8.3 — Before (Old Draft)

"This Agreement shall automatically terminate without notice upon the Employee attaining the age of sixty-two (62) years"

CLAUSE 14.1 — Before (Old Draft)

"The Employee hereby waives any right to raise internal disputes or grievances in connection with any decision made by the Employer regarding the Employee's terms of employment or termination thereof."

Employment decisions — dismissal, retrenchment and termination

7.—(1) An employer makes an employment decision if the employer dismisses or retrenches, or terminates the contract of service of, an employee.

(2) In subsection (1), “retrench”, in relation to an employee, means to terminate the employee’s contract of service at the initiative of the employer because of redundancy or any reorganisation of the employer’s profession, business, trade or work.

Restriction on contracting out

41. Any term of a contract of service or collective agreement is void insofar as it purports —

- (a) to exclude or limit the operation of any provision of this Act; or
- (b) to preclude any person from making a complaint or allegation or raising a grievance under this Act.

HIGH RISK — Clause 8.3 (Automatic Termination at Age 62)

Direct conflict with s.7 WFA — age is a protected characteristic. Mandatory termination tied solely to age constitutes a discriminatory employment decision.

HIGH RISK — Clause 14.1 (Waiver of Grievance Rights)

Directly voided by Clause 41 WFA. Any term preventing an employee from raising a grievance under the Act is rendered void by operation of law.

INFERRED

WHY

Profile states 'no formal grievance procedure in place' for a 40-employee employer. Section 41 makes void any term that precludes a grievance under the Act; the absence of a procedure when the Act takes effect creates actionable exposure — employees gain a statutory right to raise grievances that cannot be contractually excluded, and the firm has no document addressing this gap.

ACTION

Draft and implement a formal grievance procedure that permits complaints under the Workplace Fairness Act before the 2026–2027 commencement date.

FOUND IN TEXT

“This Agreement shall automatically terminate without notice upon the Employee attaining the age of sixty-two (62) years. Such termination shall be deemed a retirement and shall not attract any notice pay, severance payment or further entitlement under this Agreement beyond salary accrued to the date of retirement.”

WHY

Ground 1: The amendment is gazetted with a fixed commencement date (2026–2027), so 'high' is available. Ground 2: This is the OPERATIVE clause—it directly states an automatic termination tied to age 62, which s7 of the Workplace Fairness Act 2024 will prohibit as an employment decision made on the ground of age (a protected characteristic). The clause also contains a waiver element in cl. 14.1 ('irrevocably waives any right to raise internal disputes, complaints or grievances... regarding... termination') which s41 renders void. A lawyer reading only this document would be misled into believing these clauses are enforceable when the Act commences.

ACTION

Remove clause 8.3 (automatic age-62 termination) and delete or redraft clause 14.1 to exclude disputes under the Workplace Fairness Act before issuing the contracts. Deadline: before the Act commences (2026–2027 expected) but PivotStack is caught in the document — clause 8.3 quoted verbatim. Kallang Works is caught by profile: 40 staff, no grievance procedure, and no document mentioning one.

CLAUSE 8.3 — Amenda's Suggested Replacement

"The Employer may review the Employee's continued engagement upon the Employee attaining the statutory retirement age as prescribed under the Retirement and Re-employment Act (Cap. 274A), and any decision regarding the continuation, variation or termination of employment shall be made on the basis of the Employee's performance, operational requirements of the Company, and other non-discriminatory grounds, in compliance with the Workplace Fairness Act 2024

CLAUSE 14.1 – Amenda's Suggested Replacement

"The Employer shall maintain an internal grievance handling process in accordance with the Workplace Fairness Act 2024. Employees are encouraged to utilise this process to raise concerns regarding their terms of employment. Nothing in this Agreement shall be construed to limit any rights conferred upon the Employee under applicable legislation, including the Workplace Fairness Act 2024."

FEATURE 2 — THE REDLINE

Both clauses, one tracked-changes diff

	This is the OPERATIVE clause—it directly states an automatic termination tied to age 62, which s7 of the Workplace Fairness Act 2024 will prohibit as an employment decision made on the ground of age (a protected characteristic). A lawyer reading only this document would be misled into believing these clauses are enforceable when the Act commences.
ACTION	Remove clause 8.3 (automatic age-62 termination) and delete or redraft clause 14.1 to exclude disputes under the Workplace Fairness Act, before issuing the contracts. Deadline: before the Act commences (2026–2027 expected), but ideally before issuing next week to avoid re-execution.

CHANGE	Clause 8.3's age trigger is removed and replaced with a lawful, merit-based review anchored to the Retirement and Re-employment Act (Cap. 274A), as s7 WFA makes termination on the ground of age a civil contravention; clause 14.1's grievance waiver — void under s41 WFA by operation of law — is converted into a compliant grievance-facilitation provision.
IF LEFT	Civil contraventions under the WFA with penalties up to S$50,000 per breach for a corporate employer; clause 14.1 becomes void on commencement regardless of the parties' agreement, and its retention signals an attempt to curtail statutory rights.

Discriminatory employment decisions and void waivers — s7, s41

Employment decisions — dismissal, retrenchment or termination — made on the ground of a protected characteristic, including age, become civil contraventions (s7). Any contract term that excludes the Act or precludes a grievance is void by operation of law (s41). Penalties for corporate employers reach S$50,000 per serious contravention.
